ADAMS COUNTIAN KILLED IN HOLD-UP IS BURIED AT HOME

Robert Swearingen, of Winchester, O., Is Killed in Illinois Town By Hold-Up Men — Burial at Winchester.

The body of Robert Swearingen was taken to Winchester, Ohio, Saturday morning, where members of the family and members of the Masonic order took charge and made burial Sunday afternoon. He was the victim of a holdup which occurred at Alledo, Illinois, Wednesday night. At that time he was with a party of friends playing cards. Without warning two unknown men entered the room and demanded what they had. Resistance was offered and during the struggle that ensued one of the intruders shot and killed Swearingen.

The perpetrators of the deed made their escape and at last account no trace of them had been found. He was well known about Winchester. He left there in 1912 settling at Alledo. Until a few years since he was chief of police there and a man known and respected in that section. He married and is survived by a wife, and one child. Two brothers, Mr. James Swearingen and Postmaster Thomas Swearingen and Mrs. Jane Rotzoff, a sister, reside at Winchester. He was in his thirty-third year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OCTOBER 3, 1930.

Topic: Birth and Childhood of Jesus. — Matthew 2:1-12.

REV. J. J. DICKEY.

The advent of Jesus Christ into the world is the greatest event in human history. Extremes meet here—the Son of God is the person and a stable the birth place! Again, the fact is revealed by heavenly messengers, on the one hand to humble shepherds, and on the other to wise men. This event was planned in the extremities, and revealed to the first pair in the very hour of their fall. Following this revelation, all down the ages, God had revealed it to Prophets who left it on record for our benefit, that we might be assured of the genuineness of Jesus' contentions, as to his origin and nature.

Joseph, the espoused husband of Mary, testified to his virgin birth, which was also a matter of prophecy. The angel that appeared to Joseph said "They shall call his name Emmanuel," which being interpreted is "God with us." The gospel of Matthew is called "The Gospel of the kingdom" because Christ is represented so often as a king, and his realm as a kingdom. Matthew wrote for all Jews who expected a great earthly ruler to rise amongst them and restore the ancient kingdom of David with all of its power and glory. The Jews had been dispersed throughout the civilized world, and had advertised this expectation. Profane historians of that period have left on record that the world was looking for some great conqueror to rise at this time. This expectation was well founded, only that this great conqueror should rule the souls of men instead of their bodies. His conquests were to deliver instead of to enslave. He was to deliver men from the slavery of self and give them "the liberty of the children of God."

The birth of this babe filled Herod, the ruler of the Jews, with such fear that in order to destroy his life he murdered all the male children of two years old and under. The selfish man is always troubled with fear. The unselfish man is always full of hope.

The worship of the wise men was simply the adoration that Eastern people gave to kings. Their gifts expressed the same idea, yet they were divinely led that their testimony might confirm the world in the truth of His divine origin. Angels were on hand at every turn, to attest His divinity. During his ministry devils testified to the same truth. "We know who you are, the Son of God." No evidence is lacking to prove that Jesus was the Son of Adam, as Luke puts it, the son of Abraham, as Matthew states it, the Son of God, as John declared. The wise men knew that Christ was born. So they were not there at his birth. The fact that Herod slew the male children two years old would indicate that their visit was two years after his birth. They did not visit a stable, but a "house," as the record shows. The number of the wise men is unknown. The childhood of Jesus was spent in Bethlehem, Egypt and Nazareth. We have no evidence of the display of his divinity until after his baptism.

LEE WILLIAMS

HON. MURRAY CRANE DIES.

Dalton, Mass., Oct. 2. — Winthrop Murray Crane, 67 years old, who had been governor of Massachusetts and U. S. senator died today at his home here, of sleeping sickness. He collapsed when attending the ceremonies of notification for Gov. Coolidge and had been ill since that time. He had announced shortly before the national convention, which he attended as a delegate and at which he was one of the group which brought the nomination of Senator Harding out of an apparently hopeless deadlock, that he would retire from active politics immediately upon the conclusion of his term as national committeeman. Mrs. Crane, his son, Winthrop Murray Crane, jr., and his two sisters, Miss Clara L. Crane and Mrs. Harry O. Bates, were at his bedside when the end came.

London, Oct. 2.—Following collapse last night, Terrence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, recovered early today and slept several hours.

Physicians at Brixton Prison said he was much weaker and urged him to take food. This was the fifty-first day of the hunger strike.
